So I'm probably voting for Obama, believe it or not. I think the "change" platform works and I kind of like Joe Biden as VP. Barack's speeches are great. Ok, when pressed about specific topics he "ums" and "ahs"...but seriously, I voted for GWB twice, so a few pauses to think are forgivable.

I just needed to get this off my chest:

I love how democrats are all women's lib when it's "their girl," but get all "go back to the kitchen" when the republicans get on board with "their girl."

I'm all in favor of the best leader leading, so let Palin make her case and stop with the "she'd make a great first lady talk."
